1. INTRODUCTION

The learning outcomes-based curriculum framework for under-graduate programmes in Law is intended to provide a comprehensive framework for designing and developing the curriculum for such programmes that respond to the changing needs of the students and parents, and the ever-growing requirements of the Bar, the Bench, and the society. The principal goal behind implementing learning outcomes-based curriculum framework is to provide the greatest flexibility to students, enabling them to understand the objectives behind studying a course and to assess the learning competency after the completion of the course. This framework will assist in improvement in the quality of UG law programmes as it provides the much-needed flexibility and innovation in program design and syllabi development, teaching-learning process, and assessment of student learning levels, to keep pace with changes and demands in the field of law.

2. LEARNING OUTCOMES BASED CURRICULUM FRAMEWORK IN B.A., LL.B (HONS.)

The B.A., LL.B (Hons.) programme is a five-year integrated UG programme. Being an interdisciplinary programme by nature, it integrates learning from other social sciences namely History, Economics, Political Science, Sociology, Literature, International Relations and Strategic Studies, which act as keys to access various cognitive skills.

The B.A., LL.B (Hons.) degree programme is comprehensive, wide-ranging and rigorously structured with flexibility to students and therefore, it is truly an undergraduate degree with 'Honours.' Similarly, importance akin to law courses is given to social science and humanities courses in the curriculum which forms the essential background for learning law in a holistic manner. As the ug law programme forms the bedrock upon which a law student's future is built, emphasis is laid on developing essential skills required to pass a person for a lawyer. Hence, the method of teaching adopted in this programme at School of Law, VISTAS is case study and problem-solving approach. The teachers adopt two well established methods in teaching, namely Cognitive and Socratic methods, in a blended manner.

The duration of the B.A., LL.B (Hons.) programme is five academic years, spanning ten semesters. Each academic year is divided into two semesters. Each semester is for the duration of eighteen weeks. The teaching and learning modalities in the Honours programme will involve theory classes (lectures) and tutorial classes. The curriculum will be taught through formal lectures with the aid of technology, wherever the teacher feels the need, of power-point presentations, audio, and video tools. There are additional requirements in certain courses for documentaries, field work, industrial visits, class reports, discussions, and project work. These are built into the teaching and assessment of all courses.

Thus, the introduction of outcome based education in B.A., LL.B (Hons.) programme is expected to provide integrated learning experience towards actualization of personal, professional and societal goals.

The pedagogic methods adopted for the B.A., LL.B (Hons.) programme involves lectures, case study methods, problem solving approaches, tutorial discussions, seminar, as well as technology-supported presentations. We believe that education is interactive and all sessions between students and teachers are based upon reciprocity and respect.

Lectures (of one hour each) delivered would systematically deal with the themes of the syllabus. This constitutes the core of the teaching-learning process. The students are provided with bibliographic references and encouraged to go through at least some readings so that they could be more interactive and ask more relevant questions in the class. Students are taught provisions of law through problem solving and case study methods.

Wherever needed, teachers use audio-video based technological devices (e.g. Power Point) to make their presentations more effective. Some courses require that students see a documentary, or undertake field visits to prison, legislative assembly, courts, forensic laboratory etc., and course themes are structured so that discussions of these will further nuance the critical engagement of students with ideas introduced in their textual materials.

COURSE OBJECTIVE: This course focuses on the theory and techniques of interviewing, counseling, and negotiation that are necessary for effective representation of clients. Such topics as question formulation, client interviewing, structuring the counseling session, case evaluation, development of bargaining range and negotiation tactics will be covered.

COURSE CONTENT:

Traditionally legal counseling was viewed as the lawyer advising his/her client regarding a legal problem. In counseling, usually the lawyer exercises a great deal of control over the outcome of counseling. In this whole exercise, the client becomes a passive spectator if not a mute spectator. This often results in the lawyer taking decisions on behalf of the client. This in fact had become an acceptable professional practice.

As times change, legal profession also undergoes tremendous changes which has resulted in the developing of “client – centered counseling”. Client centered counseling requires that lawyer assist the client in the way he/she needs rather than the lawyer taking any decisions on behalf of the client. Counseling is all about giving such information which a client would like to know regarding his legal problem/case. Client may require such information to take some decision about the course of action he/she may like to take in future.

In this course, a student will be given two issues. In one issue, they should as an advocate and in another issue, they will act as the client. The course covers specific skills in the following sequence: client interviewing, client counselling, and negotiation. The course necessarily includes other skills such as fact gathering and analysis, strategic thinking, and lawyering within the law of ethics and within your own moral framework.

Students will be judged for 100 marks internally, based on parameters such as interviewing techniques, etiquacy and communication, note-taking skills, counselling, and negotiation skills.

- CO1: Build rapport and trust with the client
